

Literacy Nova Scotia (LNS) provides leadership to advance literacy for all Nova Scotians by supporting access to quality literacy, essential skills, and lifelong learning opportunities. Our membership encompasses a wide range of organizations committed to promoting literacy. This includes 27 community learning organizations, the Nova Scotia Community College, work activity groups, and national literacy organizations. To achieve our mandate, we fulfill three primary roles and work as an information broker, a training broker, and as an incubator/innovator for new programs.

We're currently seeking a member with financial acumen to join our board of directors. This individual will provide valuable insights and guidance to ensure the financial health and sustainability of our organization as we continue to expand our literacy programs and services across the province.

The ideal candidate for this position will have:

- Significant experience in financial management, accounting, or related fields.
- Strong analytical skills and a keen attention to detail.
- A passion for our mission and a commitment to promoting literacy and education for all.

As a board member, you'll have the opportunity to contribute your financial expertise to our organization's strategic planning and decision-making processes. Your insights will be instrumental in guiding our financial policies and practices to support our mission-driven initiatives effectively.

If you're interested in joining our board and contributing your financial experience to our cause, please contact Literacy Nova Scotia's Executive Director, Jayne Hunter, at Jayne.Hunter@literacyns.ca. We thank you for your interest.
